

For far too long, broadcast radio has provided a substandard product that rarely met the needs of the public. I have been a loyal subscriber to the XM Satellite Radio service since I became aware of it. There is no substantive reason why the NAB Petition 04-160 should be considered, I respectfully request the FCC to reject the petition. XM's position to support its subscribers with the content they request should not be hindered by turf wars.

This battle did not work with satellite television providers, and I now receive local content from affiliates previously relegated to cable and OTA broadcast. It is a no brainer - the FCC must provide satellite radio with the same rights as its TV counterparts.

Yours Respectfully,
Cris Rogers
